Elite Community Scholars

The Elite Community Scholars program seeks to provide resources, information, and mentoring to high school juniors and seniors from all socioeconomic backgrounds.

Programs are generally offered free of charge, typically to low-income, first-generation students who normally wouldn't have access to Elite's programs due to an inability to pay.

The first Community Scholars projects launched in 2008 at Young Nak Church in Lincoln Heights and Kidworks in Santa Ana, two organizations that invest in local children to help them become leaders in their communities.

"Thank you for encouraging us and pushing us to reach our full potential. Without you, I'm sure a great number of us wouldn't even have taken the SAT. In addition to helping us academically, you also made us feel sure of ourselves. With the motivation that you kindled I'm sure that we will go great places!"

Refugee Education Project

Bogor, Indonesia

In Bogor, Indonesia, there are nearly 100 children between the ages of 6 and 16 currently in refugee camps. These children of families fleeing to Indonesia from all over the world—mostly Pakistan, Iraq, Afghanistan, Myanmar, and Syria—have no access to schooling because they have not yet obtained the legal status of refugees from the government of Indonesia.

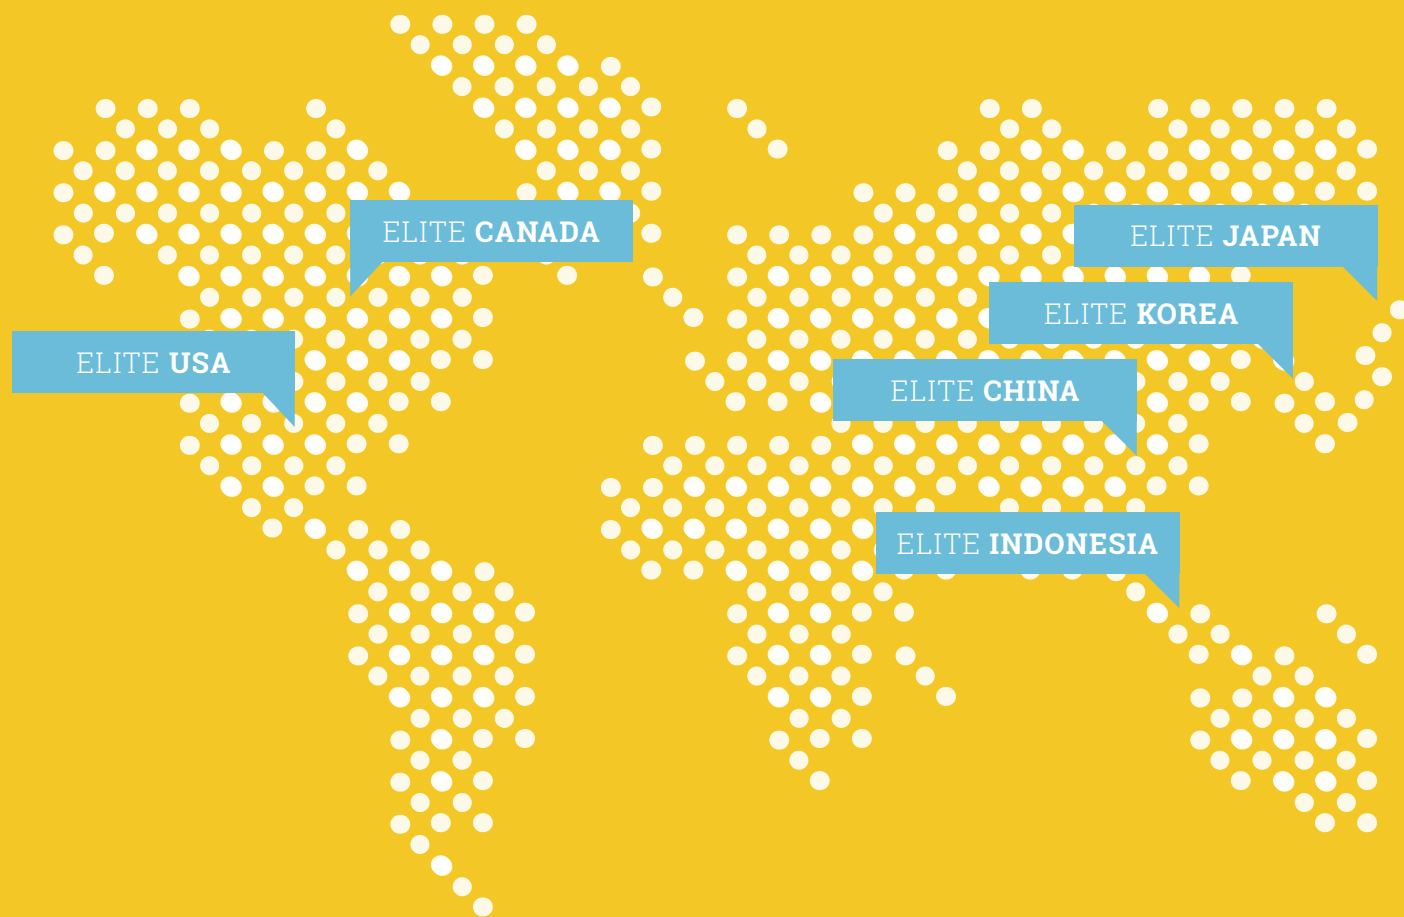

To help these children during this uncertain time, Elite Education Group has opened a dedicated campus in Bogor, free of charge.

Fully equipped with a computer lab facility, Elite-trained teachers, and an extensive, accredited curriculum, Elite is providing these students full access to an American middle school and high school education through our recognized and proven Elite Open School blended-learning programs.
